GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Thirty-Third Encampment and Reunion, Philadelphia, Sept. 4th, to 9th, 1899.

The members of the G. A. R. in this city and vicinity, are making arrangements to attend the annual reunion at Philadelphia, from September fourth to ninth, and it promises to be the greatest success in the history of the veterans.

There will be no trouble for the veterans, who attend the thirty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held in Philadelphia the first week in September, to find each other. The most complete system of registration ever adopted will be used, so that the comrades are sure of meeting and falling into each others arms. By the system, a man may find where an old friend is located in a few minutes, and this will be of the greatest importance to the veteran who comes to the city a stranger and alone. He may have been in the city before, but he will now want to meet some of the men who were with him during his campaigns.

He can get the information he needs without any loss of time. The way that is to be accomplished is this: The registration committee, of which Harry L. Neall is the head, have arranged 7000 receptacles designating regiments, war vessels, etc., giving accommodations for 150,000 names. These receptacles are five and one fourth inches wide and fourteen inches long and are to be hung up against a wall, in tiers of five, starting two feet from the floor and running up to about seven feet. A quick calculation will show that it will take to do that about 650 feet in length of wall space. That space will be divided into states, regular soldiers and navy and marine corps and then subdivided according to the individual organizations furnished under those heads or by ships. All that a man will have to do will be to go to the grand division in which his comrade enlisted, whether the state or the United States service, and when he has found that he will simply ascertain the number or the name of the regiment.

THAT WEBSTER PORTRAIT.

J. Warren Towle, Esq., visited Portsmouth Tuesday to confer with the noted artist, Mr. Ulysses D. Tenney, regarding the copy which it is hoped to secure for the Exeter court house, of the Webster portrait at Harvard. Mr. Tenney would very much like to execute the order, and gave to Mr. Towle the following agreement:

30 Congress Street, Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 8, 1899.
I hereby agree to make an accurate copy of the whole length portrait of Daniel Webster, now hanging in Austin Hall, Cambridge, Mass., for the sum of $300, the copy to be acceptable to Ches. W. Eliot, president of Harvard University, Prof. O. C. Langdell and J. Warren Towle, Esq. U. D. TENNEY.

Mr. Tenney's terms are certainly reasonable, and the order could not be committed to worthier hands. The funds which are the prerequisite of the contract should readily be forthcoming.—Exeter News Letter.

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SAM WALTER FOSS WELL RECEIVED AT HEDDING.

The New Hampshire poet, Sam Walter Foss, was well received at Hedding on Thursday evening. Chautauqua hall contained a large audience which heartily applauded the selections that Mr. Foss recited from his own works. The poet and his son, Saxton, were entertained by Alanson Palmer of New York, vice president of the Hedding Chautauqua association at the Wequetuquock cottage.

TEA TABLE TALK.

I heard a man say yesterday that a bad accident would result some day if the motormen on the Lylington street line of the electric railway persisted in running so fast from Bridge street to the Creek overhead bridge. He should have been with me last Sunday if he would have an idea of real speed on a trolley car. Three of us Portsmouth fellows left Exeter on one of the "jump" cars of the Exeter, Hampton and Amesbury road at 7.30 in the evening, for Hampton depot, making a try for the 8.09 train from there into Portsmouth, and we made connections—but so close that three seconds couldn't have been wedged in between.

The schedule running time from Exeter to Hampton depot is a little more than forty minutes. The conductor gave the motorman a hint that we should greatly appreciate it if we could catch that train, and he landed us there at 8.08. We had just time enough to walk up the platform to the depot, get our tickets and board the cars. That motorman scored an actual running time of twenty-nine minutes, for we were held on a turn-out for nine minutes. He did it slick, too, without any apparent inconvenience.

I believe there are more newspaper thieves in this city than elsewhere in the state. And they are bold ones, too. As I was coming down town this morning about seven o'clock, I saw a fellow who was on his way to the shoe factory stop at the Y. M. C. A. building, pick up the morning paper that was lying on the steps and stand there looking it through for three or four minutes. When he had scanned all the headings and obtained a general idea of the news, he went on up Islington street as serenely as you please. I will give him credit for one thing, though, he didn't carry the paper away. I think he would have done so, however, if so many people hadn't been passing.

There's a large gang of these contemptible chaps in Portsmouth. Every morning somebody complains that his or her paper has been stolen by some one of this riff raff. An example ought to be made of one of them.

The crickets are piping their choruses every evening now. The birds are thinning out. The turkeys begin to look worried—for it is not so very far ahead to the furies of Thanksgiving snow, the thud of the axe on the chopping block and the snap of the wishbone. Even the iceman is growing sober. He can already see his finish. In a few weeks more he will have lost all his popularity and will have to go to heaving coal or doing something else. The season is passing rapidly and soon, almost before we can realize it, we shall be inhaling the vigorous air of autumn, the healthiest time in all the twelve months.

So they have located another obstruction in Boston harbor and stuck a buoy on it. Before long that harbor will have more buoys than navigators can count. The latest obstacle is novel in one way for Boston harbor,—it isn't made of mud,—but they don't know yet just what it is.

It is regrettable that Walter Woods isn't connected with one of the top-notch teams in the National baseball league, instead of being tied down to a tail-end outfit like Louisville. If the Portsmouth boy were with Brooklyn, Boston or Philadelphia we should hear of him often. Backed by a fast fielding combination, he would be inspired to do his very best work.

I thought about everybody of any literary bent here in Portsmouth knew who Sam Walter Foss is. Only a day or two ago, however, I came upon a woman—a school teacher, at that. I am quite sure,—who was most blandly ignorant regarding the clever New Hampshire poet whose verses have circulated into about every section of the country and whose name is a familiar one in all literary centers of America. And Mr. Foss is a graduate of the Portsmouth High school, too. Such is fame!

I see that a singer has been engaged to take the place of Jessie Bartlett Davis in the Bostonians. Miss Jennie Jehu, a well known church contralto of Alameda, Cal., signed a contract a day or two ago for next season. She will come to New York soon and join the company.

I believe the reason for the temporary suspension of work on Haven park lies in the non-arrival of the curbing that is to be put in around the plot. If so, then Street Commissioner Scruton doesn't deserve half the calumny that has been cast at him lately for his delay in putting the new park into shape. Undoubtedly "Scrut" will be overjoyed when the Haven is finally fixed up and in general use. It has been a bone of contention ever since it was willed to the city, Fogg.

MR. BLAIR SENDS OUT OPEN LETTER ON THE SENATORIAL SITUATION.

The following letter was sent out to day by the Hon. Henry W. Blair, to the members of the Republican State committee and officers of the various republican clubs throughout New Hampshire:

MANCHESTER, Aug. 12.
My Dear Sir:—I should be pleased to hear from you on the United States senatorial situation in this state. It has seemed to me that the republicans of New Hampshire would be willing to hold themselves uncommitted for a reasonable length of time,—until, at least, the qualifications of all candidates have been carefully considered.

As the election of a successor to Senator Chandler will not take place until 1901, and I do not understand that it is yet determined whether or not he will again be a candidate, nor who will be suggested for the honor, it has occurred to me that any precipitation and mechanical effort looking toward premature commitment of individuals ought not to prevail.

As I cannot undertake to write all of my friends on this subject, I should be pleased to have you confer with the active republicans with whom you may come in touch, and drop me a line at your early convenience, expressing the views of those with whom you talk, as well as your own.

One word as to general politics: The most difficult problems that have arisen in American statesmanship since the civil war are upon us, and imperatively demand the profoundest thought of our ripest, most prudent, experienced and sagacious men. This great work must and will be done under the leadership of the Republican party. The tremendous development of our material prosperity. That prosperity rests upon the preservation of the protective tariff and the existing gold standard of value.

All other issues are subordinate to these two, and upon them will turn the next election, because upon them depend the stability of business and the employment of the people. The loss of one month of work by the American people is the loss of not less than two thousand millions of dollars, and is a greater material calamity than half a dozen Spanish wars, and no good or glory to anybody.

Let us close up the ranks, and prepare for the great struggle and triumphant victory of 1900.

Truly yours,
HENRY W. BLAIR.

WHOLESALE DESTRUCTION OF BIRDS.

The friends of agriculture, as well as the lovers of birds, may well be alarmed at the dire results of the destruction of bird life that has taken place in recent years. Most of this destruction has been brought about by the demand for the stuffed bodies or the wings of birds to be used for the decoration of women's hats. Besides this there has been much killing of birds from mere wantonness until we have come to inhabit an almost birdless country. New Hampshire has suffered along with the rest of the states and even a casual observer cannot fail to note the absence of bird life in the country districts where it used to be so abundant. The loss of the birds means an opportunity for all manner of insects to prey upon vegetation, and prompt advantage has been taken of it. Unless the birds can be restored one of the worst enemies of the farmer will increase year after year. The most stringent laws should be enacted and enforced if they be found necessary to protect the birds and allow them again to fulfill their helpful mission to the cause of the agriculturist.

GREENLAND.

GREENLAND, Aug. 12.
The master of the Rye Orange thinks it would be a good idea for Rye and Greenland granges to club together and hold a small fair in the yard of the Greenland town hall. Such a thing would not only be a very pleasant fete, but would remind us that Greenland is alive.

Most of the Hampton baseball team are very sorry that the team has dropped out of the Trolley league.

Some of our farmers have begun thinking about taking in the fair at Rochester.

The ball game between Newfields and Hampton that was to have been played today will, without a doubt, be cancelled on account of the rain.

The Greenland baseball team is expecting a game at the Tilton state fair.

NEWFIELDS, Aug. 11.
Joseph Brackett who resides on the road from Rockingham Junction to Epping known as the Ash Swamp road, lost a valuable horse yesterday. While in the swamp picking berries he tied the animal to a tree by a rope halter which it drew so tightly around its neck as to strangle it to death. It was a peculiar accident, for himself cannot tell exactly the manner in which it occurred.

William Foley, who had his eye injured by a piece of steel at the Portsmouth navy yard is receiving treatment from a skilled physician. It cannot be definitely determined yet whether or not his sight will be permanently impaired.

Mr. Almon Fernald and family of Worcester, Mass., are the guests of D. C. Wiggin.

William Hartnett, one of the leading checker players of the town, is now engaged in a series of games with Horace Frame of Exeter for the championship of that town. The opening games of the match took place there Thursday evening before a large and interested audience.

Hartnett lead by a score of 3 to 1 and I draw at the end of the fifth game. After that his opponent improved in his game and succeeded in getting even with him—four games each and two draws at the end of the tenth when play for the evening was suspended. All lovers of the silent game are much interested in the result. Hartnett has been playing for several years and was a member of the All New England team which competed against the All Boston team last February. He has been coached by Thomas Leddy who holds a lofty position in the checker world and at one time champion of the Granite State.

LOCAL STORIES

A woman entered a photograph studio, one day this week, with a young child, and wanted to know what would be the charge for the picture of the little one. "Fifty cents," was the photographer's reply, "but I can take them cheaper by the dozen." "Perhaps I will wait," the woman said, "for now I have ten children." A look of amazement was on the photographer's face as the woman left the studio, and he did not attempt to explain his remark.

A well known railroad official who has just taken up the game of golf declares that the ball in front of its driver is more dangerous to persons in the vicinity of the links than is a bullet from a Mauser rifle in the hands of a Filipino rebel to the American troops. "You hit the ball and hit it hard in the direction you want it to take," said he, "but there is no telling where the pesky thing will land. The other afternoon I sent a ball off and it missed hitting the manager of a hotel who was driving down the thoroughfare to the left of the links, and was some distance away, by an inch. This somewhat dazed me and I determined to be more careful. Way down the links was a lady going the rounds as only an expert can. I had no idea that I could possibly do the distance, but I warned her to look out and she replied that she guessed she was out of the danger zone. Upon that I let the ball go, and she had to take to the bushes nearly to escape it. Golf is a great game, truly, but you can never back on where the ball is going to land."

APPOINTED QUARTETMAN MACHINIST.

Mr. George E. Sides of this city has been appointed by Acting Secretary Allen as quartermaster machinist in the department of steam engineering. He becomes assistant to Master Machinist John W. MUTILATE SOLDIERS

BOUNTY OFFERED FOR THEM.

It is Charged That Aguinaldo Leads Encouragement to This Barbaric Style of Warfare.

Corporal Slessinger and Others of the Eighteenth Infantry, Make the Charge—Gunboats Nearly Destroy Town of San Fernando—MacArthur's Troops Resting.

Manila, Aug. 11.—Gen. MacArthur's troops are resting at Calcut, while Gen. Wheaton is reconnoitering. The weather is scorching, but there is no rain.

The gunboats Yorktown, Concord, Callao and Pampana shelled the town of San Fernando la Union and half destroyed it. The natives replied to the fire with musketry and two cannon, but were finally driven to the hills.

General Otis has closed all of the Filipino ports and declared a blockade. Aguinaldo on July 24 closed all Filipino ports to Americans and ordered that the vessels of all other nationalities must submit to a military examination of their crews and cargoes.

An extensive reconnaissance was made by Major O'Brien, of the Seventeenth Infantry, who penetrated to point close to Angeles. He estimates that there are 250 natives there. The Twelfth Infantry reports that there are scattered bodies of Filipinos near Porac.

The transport Sheridan sailed for San Francisco with the Twelfth Infantry, and First South Dakota Volunteers and 203 discharged men on board.

The American Losses.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The records of the War Department show a total of 9,603 deaths from all causes since war with Spain was declared. This carries the general percentage a little higher than that in the Philippines, but it is less than 3 per cent. of the 275,000 men called to arms from all the walks of civil life and put into the field. The deaths in the Philippines, as stated, were 725. The deaths in Cuba have been 1,240; in Porto Rico, 207; in Hawaii, 46; in Cuban transports, 220; and in the United States, from those in the camps of mobilization and from those returning debilitated by wounds and disease, 4,108. In other words, the deaths in the home country, where there has been no tropical climate and no bullets of the enemy, are nearly twice the number of those who have gone to foreign countries to do battle and withstand all the hardships of warfare.

Mutilate American Soldiers.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 11.—The Filipinos have placed a bounty on the right ears of Americans and mutilation is practised by them after every skirmish.

This statement is made by Corporal D. Slessinger and other men of the Eighteenth Infantry arriving on the steamer Empress of Japan.

The soldiers assert that the hospitals are full, and that Otis has ordered the regiments to keep all their sick and wounded except those requiring amputation.

Transport Leaves Iloilo.

Washington, Aug. 11.—This dispatch has been received at the War Department:

"Adj. Gen. Washington: 'Transport Pennsylvania left Iloilo this morning. Sheridan should leave Manila this evening.' OTIS."

The Floods in Manila.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 11.—Manila natives received by the Empress of Japan say that typhoons and rains have turned the city, wet enough at the best, into an immense pond. Sampaloc district was so completely flooded that the people were forced into the upper stories of the houses.

Cuba's Finances.

Havana, Aug. 11.—The financial statement for the island, covering the first six months of this year, shows customs receipts to the amount of $1,700,000, and expenses to the amount of $3,500,000, leaving a good working balance of more than $1,000,000. La Lucha, commenting upon this, expressed the hope that the customs and posts will be retained by the Americans in any event.

Hit By Astor's Yacht.

New York, Aug. 11.—John Jacob Astor's steam yacht, Nourmahal, going up the East River ran into the canal boat Naomi, which was hit on Pier 8. The yacht ploughed into the canal boat's starboard bow, just at the bilge, making such a crash that the boat, which was loaded with railroad ties, sank five minutes after the collision until her deck was awash.

Five Children Cremated.

Jackson, La., Aug. 11.—Five negro children were tried to death on McKenna's plantation near this place. The parents locked them up in their house and went to church. On their return the charred remains of the little ones were found.

Germany to Take Final Possession.

Madrid, Aug. 11.—A despatch from Manila says that a German despatch boat has sailed from that port for the purpose of taking formal possession of the Caroline Islands, which were recently purchased from Spain by Germany.

England Hiring Ships.

London, Aug. 11.—The Government has made requisition for the third-class quarters of the Union liner Goth Castle and the liner Armdel Castle, in order to hurry troops to South Africa.

DREYFUS COURT-MARTIAL

Rennes, Aug. 11.—The strictest precautions were again taken in the transfer of Dreyfus from the prison to the Lycée, the streets being cleared by the gendarmes.

The Prefect of the Department of Ille-et-Vilaine announced that the public sitting of the court martial would be resumed on Saturday.

Nothing is known respecting the examination of the secret dossier except that M. Chamois has finished with the military dossier and M. Paleologue began on his display of the political dossier. According to rumor everything thus far has been favorable to Dreyfus.

The only revisionist newspaper in Rennes has been ordered by the Department Commander to stop sending copies to the Military Club.

Saturday's public session of the Dreyfus trial was a veritable field day, probably the most important, and exciting day of the whole trial, as General Mercier and M. Casimir-Perier have been cited to give their testimony then.

The first witness will be Lieutenant Colonel De la Roche Vermet, French Military Attaché in Berlin at the time of the arrest of Dreyfus. His deposition is expected, will be of great value of quality, then General Mercier will be called.

A dramatic scene is anticipated by the anti-Dreyfusards, who rely upon him to throw a bombshell and confound the accused once for all. His words, "I have complete proofs of the guilt of Dreyfus," are remembered, and both sides are waiting for him to prove his statement.

Want to Settle Very Cheaply.

New Haven, Aug. 11.—The Derby & Shelton Traction company, on whose road 30 persons were killed in the trolley accident at Stratford, will endeavor to settle for twenty-three dead bodies at the rate of $100 per body.

Allan Wreck Palm, attorney for the road, has admitted that the company would probably default the many damage suits already filed by heirs of victims.

Connecticut law only nominal damages can be collected in case of death, unless suffering is proved.

In the Shelton trolley accident, when the car fell from a bridge fifty-seven feet high, the railroad company alleges that twenty-three people were killed instantaneously.

Judge Wheeler, in the New Haven Supreme Court, ruled only last week that there is suffering where death is instantaneous. If the company defaults, judgment to the limit of the law, only $100 can be entered.

It remains to be seen whether a Connecticut judge can be found who will rule that falling in a trolley car fifty-seven feet of space to the ground constitutes mental or physical suffering.

The payment of $112,700 depends upon this ruling, for if this decision is made, then damages for $5,000 may be obtained in each case.

One of the first damage suits to be brought was instituted by Seymour Loomis, a lawyer, in behalf of the widow of William Baldwin, one of the victims. Mr. Loomis stated that he would fight the plea that in the Shelton horror there was no suffering before death.

"I am willing to rest my case," he said, "on the statement that no one can fall fifty-seven feet under any circumstances, while conscious, and not suffer, suffering in a trolley car increases the suffering."

The coroner's jury has visited the Bridgeport Hospital, where the persons injured are being cared for, and questioned several of them.

At the inquest Eugene B. Underwood, an electrical engineer, reported that he had made an examination of the electrical equipment of the wrecked car and found that the controller box had been opened and part of the mechanism pried off.

George E. Hawes, who was present the morning after the accident, exhibited photographs showing a gang of men at work at the approach of the trestle lamping the car to the ties.

Klondike King Bankrupt.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 11.—After knowing for two years what it is to be a millionaire, big Alex. Macdonald is again a poor man. The reign of the Klondike king is ended and he has shouldered his pick and started out as a poor miner, leaving his bride in Davison with a horde of creditors for his benefit all his interests, both mining and trading, have been assigned. In his formal declaration of insolvency, filed at Dawson on July 29, Macdonald states his liabilities to be approximately $6,000,000, while there is no way of fairly computing his assets, as his investments are of largely problematical value.

Back to the Wages of '93.

Lewisburg, Pa., Aug. 11.—Notices have been posted in the different departments of the Standard Steel Works, employing nine hundred men, at Barnham, this county, that the wages in the various departments, dating from Aug. 1, will be restored to the same basis as before the cut in '93. This is equivalent to a raise of 10 per cent.

England Won't See Dewey.

London, Aug. 11.—The Daily Mail announces that it telegraphed to Admiral Dewey, asking him to confirm or deny the report that it was his intention to visit England, and received the following reply: "I regret I cannot visit England. I must arrive at New York on October 1."

Fatally Hurt in Boiler Explosion.

Shamokin, Pa., Aug. 11.—A boiler exploded at the New Greenough shaft at Marion Heights. Fireman John Rey-buck was fatally injured. A number of men had narrow escapes from flying debris. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Denied by Lady Randolph Churchill.

London, Aug. 11.—Lady Randolph Churchill makes an unqualified denial of the report which has been in circulation for several days that she is engaged to be married to Lieut. Cornwallis-West.

EARNED NOT BOUGHT.

Staying Power Counts in a Long and Stern Run.

Portsmouth people need not be told how hard it is to earn and maintain a good reputation and how easy it is to lose one. After such a loss it is well nigh impossible to recover the ground and the majority who have slipped by the wayside have been forced to stay there. As with a man's reputation, so it is with medicinal preparations. Some achieve a reputation which stays with them. It is founded on intrinsic merit and not sustained by elaborate advertising. It faces the public backed up by honesty and works its way quietly but thoroughly. Portsmouth people want no better proof of the reputation earned by Doan's Kidney Pills than the following experience from a citizen.

Mrs. William Bell of No. 3 Hill street, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and so did my husband. Both of us received great benefit from them and we write recommending them to others. We read about them in the newspapers, and as we were both suffering at the same time we got a box at Philbrick's pharmacy on Congress street. I was troubled with a grinding pain in my back, dizziness and distress in my head, and lameness in my kidneys. My husband had lameness in the back and the secretions from his kidneys acted too frequently, particularly at night which greatly disturbed his rest. We commenced using them together and it was not long before the desired and the expected result took place. We are so pleased with Doan's Kidney Pills that you may use our name in making known the fact that we never used a better remedy, and that we conscientiously think they will cure the same on any sufferer from kidney complaint."

YAQUI INDIANS DEFEATED.

Retire From Bacum—Supposed to be in Force Near Vicam.

Durango, Mex., Aug. 11.—The state troops have had another encounter with the Yaquis near Medano, defeating them with a loss of several killed. The state troops did not lose a man, but Lieut. Francisco Galles died from sunstroke during the forced march.

Further details have been received of the attack on the sloop Alondra and Dulsa, near Medano, when young Aurelio Paredes was killed. The Indians captured the wife of the captain of the Alondra and two boys and carried them off. At their first camp they tied up and flogged the woman, trying to get information of the forces at Medano, and then turned all three loose in the brush. The woman says the insurgents have infantry and cavalry, but she could not say what their number was.

The wound of Gen. Torres, received in the combat, is a slight one, and he is rapidly recovering. The death of Juan Maldonado, or Tetablate, has been confirmed.

The Indians have retired from Bacum and are supposed to be in force near Vicam, where they are shortly to be attacked.

Stop Cruel Treatment.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Controller William J. Morgan has written a letter to Bishop Hand, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Syracuse Institution for Feeble-minded Children, in which he calls attention to cruelties and irregularities found to exist in that institution by the investigation conducted by Deputy Controller Gilman and Secretary Leebard of the State Board of Charities. The communication in part follows:

"I am aware that it is contrary to the wishes of the Board of Managers that corporal punishment should be inflicted upon the inmates; in fact, I am informed that such punishment is prohibited by the rules of the institution. Notwithstanding this, it appears from the sworn evidence, both from the attendants and inmates, that corporal punishment is inflicted. The nature of this punishment consists of cutting the children upon the head and body, or striking them, both naked and clothed, with the hand and sticks and with rubber hose and kicking them. It also was shown that attendants were in the habit of punishing the children in their stomachs with their fists and picking them up bodily and throwing them to the floor. In one instance at least a child was kicked in the face, making a cut that had to be stitched up by a physician.

"While your superintendent may not have been a party to the infliction of such punishment, it is almost impossible to understand how he could have been ignorant of the facts; but, admitting that he was ignorant, it indicates a lack of that close personal knowledge on his part of the inside workings of the institution which is absolutely necessary to good management."

HURRICANE'S WORK.

Later Reports of Wreck and Flood in West Indies.

FIVE HUNDRED ARE KILLED.

Many Plantations Are Wrecked, Homes Destroyed and Valuable Property Swept Away.

First Accounts Underestimated the Loss of Life and Great Damage to Estates—Sad Havoc Wrought in Porto Rico—Suffering Among the Homeless People.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 11.—Later and more complete details of the frightful havoc wrought by the hurricane which swept the West Indies, give evidence of the fact that the first accounts received of the calamity greatly underestimated the loss of life and also the property losses resulting from the storm in which the wind reached a velocity of ninety-eight miles an hour. The loss of property is practically out of the question to estimate, but enough is known at this time to justify the statement that fully $2,000,000 worth of damage was done. Reports from the interior continue to come in and each one adds to the chapter of widespread destruction and devastation. Villages have been destroyed, plantations wrecked, and everything movable swept away.

It is now known that fully 300 people lost their lives as a direct result of the tornado. The storm lasted a little more than seven hours.

At Abasco little remains standing except the cathedral and the barracks. Four natives perished and three United States soldiers were injured badly. As the town is without food, Government relief has been sent.

El Cayey was leveled to the ground, 200 houses being demolished. Two United States soldiers were injured here and many cavalry horses killed.

At Catano the entire plant of the Standard Oil Company was ruined. The loss on the property is $200,000. At Bayamon a majority of the houses were destroyed and the others were looted. Two hundred cattle were killed and the railway was seriously damaged.

The village of Carolina was razed. At Caguas 200 persons were killed. A courier who had just arrived from Humacao, capital of the province of that name, on the eastern coast of the island, reports awful destruction there. The courier brought an official report from Captain Eben Swift of the Fifth United States cavalry, who says:

"Humacao was totally destroyed by the hurricane. Forty bodies have been recovered, and there are many more in the ruins. Eight privates of Troop C were injured, two fatally. Sergeant King of the Eleventh Infantry was injured. North, a discharged private, is missing. At the port of Humacao eighteen bodies have been recovered. Eight hundred people are starving here."

Three persons were killed at Las Piedras and five at Juncos. Couriers from other districts are anxiously expected at the palace. The steamer Slocum, Captain Thomas, on his way from Mayaguez to San Juan, was caught in the storm; but her passengers and crew were saved through the heroism of Mr. Single, the first officer.

An Appeal for Assistance.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The weather bureau issues the following bulletin: Hurricane central north of eastern extremity of Cuba moving northwest and probably reemerging northward. South Atlantic and Cuban shipping advised to remain in port. Williams, Acting Chief, Weather Bureau.

The Secretary of War received the following report from Gen. Davis, commanding in Porto Rico:

"San Juan, Porto Rico, Aug. 10. 'Hurricane of extreme violence passed over Porto Rico. The principal military loss at San Juan, one temporary company barracks wholly destroyed, some quarters property damaged. No personal injuries yet reported, but all wires are down. No injury to shipping here save two small local schooners sunk, two sailors drowned. San Juan lights temporarily disabled. Cable reports from Ponce say all shipping is ashore. Custom house sheds badly damaged and goods stored there in jeopardy. Two interior posts full of barracks unroofed and personal and public property damaged. The loss by the inhabitants is very great, and extreme suffering must result. The last hurricane severe as this was in 1876, when owing to loss of houses fruit and provisions there was famine. I would publish notice in the United States to the effect that contributions of food, clothing and money for the destitute would be received with the greatest gratitude and will be applied to the destitute. Have appointed a board to supervise distribution. There are many thousands of families who are entirely homeless, and very great distress must follow."

"Davis, Commanding."

Many Estates Destroyed.

Paris, Aug. 11.—Advices from La Pointe a Pitre, island of Guadeloupe, say the cyclone did enormous damage in the interior of that island, a number of coffee and cocoa estates being devastated. Le Mourle, a suburb, was half destroyed. There were a number of fatalities. San Juan advised say the cyclone caused great devastation in Porto Rico, where it passed northward to Dominica, and thence to Cape Haytien and the eastern end of Cuba.

Montserrat Devastated. St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 11.—The island of Montserrat (British West Indies) was devastated by the hurricane. All the churches, estates and villages were destroyed and many persons were killed. In addition many were injured and rendered homeless and terrible distress exists among the sufferers.

MRS. PEROT APPEARS.

The Abduction Case Remanded Until Tuesday in London.

London, Aug. 11.—Mrs. William Y. Perot, of Baltimore, Md., charged with abducting her daughter Gladys, has been remanded at Bow Street Police Court until Tuesday, bail being allowed as previously.

At the conclusion of the hearing she was served with a habeas corpus to produce Gladys, granted on the application of Mr. William H. Perot, her father-in-law, and returnable in the high court Saturday.

The court was well filled with a fashionably dressed audience before the beginning of proceedings, including the Misses Blood, Mr. N. Blood, Solicitor-General Richards, Mr. W. H. Perot Sr., Messrs. Hudson and Sumner, of the United States Embassy; Detective Gault, and the lawyers interested in the case.

Counsel for Mrs. Perot said he had received the extradition papers only an hour previously and had not had time to examine them. Therefore he asked for a short adjournment.

Mr. Newton Crane, counsel for Mr. W. H. Perot, said he did not object, provided it was understood that there would be no further postponement. This was agreed to.

Mrs. Perot left the dock, smiling at Gladys, and saying: "Come along, darling."

Makes Affidavit to Charges.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 11.—If what Miss Frances Day says in regard to the cruel treatment practiced in the New Jersey Industrial School for Girls is true, there is just cause for the indignation of that institution that is now going on Miss Day charges, and makes affidavit to her statements that the strap and rubber hose are used in corporal punishment cases to such an extent that at least one inmate has been driven to the insane asylum and others have been punished unmercifully for slight offenses. She says the punishment was so severe that she could not bear to see it inflicted upon those in her charge and resigned her position as clerk in consequence.

Kronman Will Prove an Alibi.

New York, Aug. 11.—It is stated here that Nathan Kronman, who is in the Tombs prison charged with the murder of his wife will be able to establish a complete alibi at the coroner's inquest. It is said that the police have fully made up their minds that Kronman is innocent of the charge against him and that new evidence has been secured that fastens the crime upon a mysterious man for whom the officers are looking. Kronman was allowed to attend the funeral of his wife which took place from the family residence.

Burglars Shot Two Watchmen.

Bourne, Mass., Aug. 11.—Deputy Sheriff Edward H. Burgess, of Monument Beach, was shot by burglars here and his wound is considered dangerous. Stillman Smalley, a watchman at Bourne, who came to Bourne on his wheel to assist the Deputy Sheriff, also was shot, but was only slightly hurt. It is believed that the two burglars who did the shooting were also wounded, as blood spots were found on the road in the vicinity.

In Favor of the Copyright.

London, Aug. 11.—The Hon. Sir Ford North, judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, has rendered an important judgment. He granted the London Times an injunction restraining a publisher, named Lane from reprinting speeches of Lord Rosbery admittedly taken from the Times. The judge held that the reporter had a copyright in his report, and that this copyright had been acquired by the Times.

Wilkes-Barre Fears Yellow Fever.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 11.—A contractor here has imported sixty colored men from Danville, Va., to work on sewers and the citizens of the town are very indignant. It is feared some of the new arrivals may be afflicted with yellow fever germs, as they came from a yellow fever district. The city authorities will probably proceed against the contractor.

Miners Have Grievances.

Wilkes-Barre, Penn., Aug. 11.—The miners of the Stevens Colliery, at Pittston, are dissatisfied. They sent a committee to the officials to present their grievances. They complain of excessive dockage and ask for an increase in the price for mining coal from 80 cents to $1.20. Many of the striking miners at Nanticoke are going there for work.

Ex-Mayor Strong in 'Frisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—William L. Strong, ex-mayor of New York and president of the Protective Tariff League, has arrived here on the east. Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Miss Allie Eagle, of New York City, who is visiting at the home of William Dierert, at 604 South Eighth avenue, this city, was the victim of a serious accident. In an instant her clothing was in flames, and before the fire was extinguished by Mr. Pinkert the young woman had suffered frightful burns on the hands, arms and face. The physician who is attending her says that her condition is serious.

Warrants for Missing Lawyer.

Several judgments have been secured by creditors in the District Court and warrants are out for his arrest. It is alleged that his clients have lost about $2,000 or more, in sums ranging from $50 to $300. The money is said to represent trust funds and portions of estates.

Whitney to Race Abroad.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 11.—According to rumors that may be relied upon to contain some truth, William C. Whitney, ex-Secretary of the Navy, will ship the stags of his racing stable to England. It is said the stags will include the great three-year-old filly Admiration, Killashandra and the best of the yearlings, and that Sam Hildroth, the stable's trainer, will go along and train there probably for the remainder of his seven years' contract. In this event Pat Duane will become Mr. Whitney's American trainer.

Kansas has a man with whiskers eight feet long. It is a safe guess that he is a populist and a candidate for senator.

The peace at any price men are going to agitate some more, they say. Meanwhile, the recruiting for the army in the Philippines goes right on.

For some reason the Santo Domingo revolution won't revolute. The leaders of it are in the business for revenue only, and there is no cash in sight.

What with the glove trust and the shoe trust in active operation, the managers of those enterprises are strongly disposed to carry things to extremes.

The Topeka Journal thinks it may be advisable for the United States to issue checks to those countries which want to be annexed, so they can tell when their turn comes.

Mr. Sewall of Maine, who rode on the rear seat with Mr. Bryan in 1896, announces that he is out of politics for good. For his own good is probably what he means.

Mr. William Waldorf Astor, British subject, declines to give his reasons for his changed allegiance. And the saddest thing about it—for Mr. Astor—is that nobody cares.

The Memphis Commercial-Appal thinks that Sylvester Scovel ought to be made admiral of the fleet of guano cruisers sent out to welcome Admiral James Greelman home.

Evidently the identity of the prize villians in the conspiracy against Dreyfus cannot be concealed much longer. Justice is after big game in France, with a certainty of getting it.

English capitalists are said to be acquiring scores of the best business openings in Cuba. The enterprising Yankee is evidently doing too much fishing and too little hustling down there.

What sublimated nonsense it is, after all, this fanciful story that Austria has asked Admiral Dewey to explain his alleged remark concerning a war scare between America and Germany! But what business is it of Austria's anyway?

Aguinaldo's appeal to the powers for recognition of the "Filipino republic" will doubtless receive a favorable response from Atkinson and Senator Hoar, but from nobody else. Those gentlemen are gifted with the rare faculty of recognizing a republic which doesn't exist.

A HOPEFUL HEART.

Congressman Sulloway Thinks He Will Win Senate Seat.

"Every day gives me great encouragement in my canvass for the United States senate," says Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway. "I am more than pleased with the outlook and feel confident that I shall be elected. I think that about all who intend to get in the contest have announced themselves, and the people are beginning to make up their minds whom they will support. From the evidences I have received personally and by letter, I do not fear the outcome in the least. I find the sentiment very strong in New Hampshire that the state should be represented in the United States senate only by men who have had legislative and congressional training to fit them for such an honor."

HAS PREPARED WARRANTS.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail says: I learn from a prominent ex-reformer that the Transvaal government has prepared warrants for the arrest of prominent reformers whenever the condition of affairs at Johannesburg provides an excuse. The presumption is that President Kruger means to secure leading Uitlanders as hostages the moment trouble arises.

A COMING CHARACTER PARTY AT YORK.

Naturally great interest is taken in the Old York Historical Village party to be given at the house and grounds of Mrs. Newton Perkins in that town on Tuesday, Aug. 15th. Historical and character parties are always popular, and to the ordinary interest in such affairs the fact that local life and surroundings of a bygone time are to be reproduced gives additional piquancy and zeal. York is said by antiquarians to be the oldest city in the country, though its municipal dignity was taken away in 1653, when the charter having been withdrawn, the city became a town. It certainly was founded under the first grant of incorporation; that is, an English city charter in 1640. Thomas Georges, the first mayor, was a nephew of Sir Ferdinand Georges, who, in 1622, received the land east of the Piscataqua river from the Plymouth council, and later the charter of the council was revoked by Charles I, who granted the same territory to Georges.

This famous, though unfortunate no bleman was an easy rival in point of historical prominence to Sir William Pepperell, the later patron saint of Kittery, though he was far from being as successful. Old York, first Agamemnon, then Georgeanna, then York, covers a region rich in historic lore, and descendants of very old families still make their home there. Such festivals as that proposed do much to revive these associations and arouse feelings of loyalty and local pride, too often wanting in New England towns. There will be a collection of old portraits, books, manuscripts, documents of various kinds and historical relics. The young men and women assisting will dress in antique costumes, and china, glass and household utensils of another century will be in evidence. The funds realized will be expended in restoring the old jail, which is probably the oldest public building in the United States, in a fair state of preservation. The exact date of its erection is not known, but there are records to show that it existed as early as 1652, when the city of Georgeanna became the shire town of York.

A fine programme has been arranged. Among other numbers will be readings by Mr. Howells, Mr. Page and John Fox, Jr., author of "The Kentuckians," written by their own works. Refreshments will be served by young ladies in costume. Among them are the Misses Loring, Tappan, Dalton and Story of Boston, Miss Harriman and Miss Burke of New York, and Misses Eliza Bliss, Minna Field, McKenna and Miles of Washington.

THE FRANK JONES BREWING CO.

OF PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Have just completed a new system for bottling the

-OLD INDIA-PALE ALE-

It is bright and sparkling and has a nice creamy taste, and is described by the doctors generally as a sedative for nervous people. There are but few medicines equal to this. Many people who are wretched find that a glass taken at night secures them a continuing and refreshing sleep. As a tonic for ladies and invalids it has no equal.

Directions:—One small glass full four times a day, before eating and going to bed.

It is a food as well as a medicine. It is bottled by the Newfields Bottling Co. only.

It is put up in cases of two dozen pints.

For further particulars write to the Chronic constipation for seven years placed me in this terrible condition, during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief, such as my case until I began using CASCARETS. A CENSUS OF CUBA.

Plan For Setting Up an Ordinary Government.

THE OBJECT OF THE WORK.

An Enumeration of All Those On the Island Is to Be Prepared for the Next Session of Congress.

The Census to be Taken Under the Supervision of the War Department—Cubans Have Been Selected as Supervisors of the Seven Provinces.

Washington, Aug. 11.—In taking a census of Cuba the war department officials say they are simply carrying out the expressed will of congress, looking to the setting up of a stable government in the island. After the war the first thing to be done was to restore order, to feed and clothe the starving and destitute, and to clean the cities and towns so as to guard against disease. The Cuban army had to be disbanded, because it was a menace to order, and because its existence would have made a farce of any election which might have been held. Any election would have been controlled by the army, and any government resulting from such an election would have been a military government. With all these things accomplished—the work of disbanding and paying the army out of the $2,000,000 fund is not yet complete—the next step is to take a census of the island, so that when congress assumes the work of legislating for permanent government it may have an enumeration of the people to enable it to legislate intelligently. The administration will report to congress, and then it will be in a position to get with the advice and assistance of congress in establishing civil government—the aim always being to withdraw American troops from Cuba just as soon as the people shall have shown their capacity for self-government, or for conducting a civil government under American auspices.

The census will be taken under direction of the war department, but the officers of the census bureau have been called on for advice and instruction in method. Dr. Frederick Winslow, the assistant director of the census, is preparing the schedules, and the bureau will have general supervision of the work under the war department. The seven supervisors for the seven provinces of Cuba have been selected by the department. They are all Cubans, and they will leave Washington Saturday night, so as to catch the steamer boat at Tampa on Monday night. The supervisors will select the enumerators, and the methods will be those employed in the census of the United States. It is the purpose to have the work completed by December, when congress meets. It is not expected that the census will discover all the conventional, manufacturing, mining and mortality statistics, but it will at least enable the war department to determine the population of each province and each township in the island, the condition of agriculture and educational facilities. The chief purpose of the census is to show the military authorities the voting population of Cuba, so that proper election laws may be applied, thus insuring a reasonably fair election representing the sentiment of the Cuban people. Some attempt will be made to determine the proportion of illiteracy among the people, but this is of the kind usually unreliable. They are secured by asking at each house whether the inmates can read or write. There has never been a pretense of applying a test, and in the nature of the work it is barely possible that any satisfactory result could be applied. To do so would multiply the labor of the census many fold; it is questionable whether an attempt of applying a test would be lawful.

Good Templar's Convention.
Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The forty-seventh annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars is to be held in this city Aug. 21 to 24. More than 100 delegates from all parts of the state will attend. There is to be a contest for the office of grand chief templar, and W. P. Hendricks of Richville, grand secretary, is a candidate for the office in place of L. C. Andrews, editor of the order's official organ at Syracuse.

Bids $4,000 for Nomination.
Belmont, O., Aug. 11.—Millard Fillmore, a newspaper man of this city, who is the latest bidder for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixteenth district, in a circular letter says that he will agree to use only $500 of the Congressman's salary and will give the remaining $3,500 toward building charitable institutions in the five counties of the district.

D., the officers of the board in this city were closed during funeral services over Dr. Lamson's body at Hartford, Conn.

Firemen Hurt by Falling Roof.
San Francisco, Aug. 11.—Eight firemen and one telegraph lineman were badly injured by the falling of the asphalt roof of the Grand Central Market in the course of a fire in the building, which was situated on Market street near Sixth. John Freeman and David Levy were dangerously injured.

President Reviews Soldiers.
Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The weather was cold and rainy here yesterday, and the President and Mrs. McKinley and the rest of the Presidential party remained in their apartments all day. The President reviewed the Twenty-sixth Regiment at Plattsburg Barracks to-day.

WAYS OF THE MEXICANS.

Street Nomenclature Customs in the Domestic Circle.

The street names of Mexico are something really appalling to the newcomer. Some years ago the streets were renamed systematically, with numerical avenues running east and west and streets north and south, and although the new names are prominently posted on all the corner houses, they are never used except in official documents. Every one uses the old names. Many of these are place names, or streets are named for some occurrence or tradition, or for the character of the trades that formerly predominated in them. The names of the streets are infinitely multiplied, because each block is regarded as a street and has a separate name. When the name of a street continues the same through more than one block, the various squares are designated as first, second, third, etc. Many of the street names seem very odd to foreigners. Those named for the deity and religious personages are numerous. For instance, there is the Heart of Jesus street and the Street of the Holy Ghost; Ave Maria street and the Avenue of the Love of God. Others are the Street of the Saint of the True Cross, the Arch of Bethlehem, and the Graves of St. Sunday street; the Bridge of St. Peter and St. Paul and the Street of the Cross in Sorcery.

Not only are the names of streets unusual, but they are often found in the most incongruous locations. For instance, if you walk down Jesus street and continue in the second block you will be startled to find that you are then on the street of the New Slaughter House, the Altar of the Sacred Potato street are just as likely to be the prolongation of the Back of Saint Teresa street as any other. The Street of the Seven Princes may no longer be inhabited by royalty, but the Avenue of Illustrious Men was named for real persons. The Street of the Lost Child derived its name from a popular tradition, but the Avenue of the Fifth of May was named for a famous battle with the French. There are a large number of the capital's streets named for living things.

There are the Street of the Little Bird, Street of the Fish, Bull street and Goat street, and streets of the Flies, Rats and locusts. It is little startling to newcomers at first to notice the universal custom in Mexico of addressing persons of high and low degree by their first names. As soon as friends are at all well acquainted they address each other by the given name, and this is done not only by those of the same age and sex, but indiscriminately among young men and young women, young people and older persons. In the latter case, or between elderly persons, a respectful prefix is used, as "Don" Ricardo. Public characters are also commonly referred to by their first names, even the wife of the President of the republic being affectionately called Carmen. In all the houses in the house hold the head of the house is called Don Jose or Don Manuel by the servants, and a son in distinction is known as Manuquito (little Manuel).

It should not be inferred from the above, however, that the relation between the family proper and the help is ever anything more than that of master and servant. The master knows his place and remains in it always, and the master would tolerate nothing less, though the servant may address the master in terms of endearment, and the master speak with servant in the language of intimacies and relatives. It is in expecting too much of the native service that the American is misled. The Mexican Indian display the same degree of providence and foresight as the educated laborers of the North, that the American employer falls out with them, or at least does not achieve the best results.

Among servants the customs regarding the names given superiors are not unlike those of the negroes of the southern United States. The lowest classes, or the servants that have grown up in a family, speak to the heads of the house as nino or nina (masculine and feminine for child), or call the wife and mother senorita, regardless of the fact that she may have attained three-score. The servants distinguish between the labor of the class and a friend of their master or mistress by such distinctions. If a caller is to be announced it is a senorita, regardless of her age, that is in the parlor. If a woman of the common class awaits the mistress it is a senora. A gentleman of the upper classes is referred to as a senor, while a laborer will be called a muchacho (boy).

The modern city of Mexico will soon be thoroughly up-to-date in all modes of street transportation. The capital has long been noted for its handsome carriages and equipages, several motor cars and tricycles are to be seen every day spinning along the level streets, the district railways are being thoroughly equipped for electric traction; a handsome line of omnibuses to one of the suburbs has just been inaugurated, that raises the "complete" sign in the most approved French fashion when the seats are all taken; a large number of fine, new public coaches, at 60 cents an hour, are to be the appearance next month, and more than all, a concession has been applied for by a company that intends to supply the city with automobile cabs.

There are no alleys in Mexico, as they are known in the United States, and no back doors to houses. Callejon is frequently translated as alley, but is literally and in reality little street, and is so called because it is either narrow or short, or both.—Modern Mex.

A Keen Retort.

Cardinal Manning's keen wit was often used to drive home a moral warning. "What are you going to do in life?" he asked a flippant undergraduate at Oxford.

"Oh, I am going to take holy orders," was the airy reply.

"Take care you get them, my son,"—Youth's Companion.

CAN PRODUCE DREAMS

The Phonograph and Stereopticon as Health Improvers.

An English physician claims to have discovered a new and efficacious cure for persons afflicted with nervous or mental maladies. If such persons, he says, can only procure pleasant dreams they will soon regain their health, and his aim is, therefore, to furnish them with delightful dreams. For this purpose he uses a soft leather cap, which covers the patient's head and ears and leaves only the face exposed. Beside the ears are placed two metal plates, which are joined by a rubber tube to a phonograph. The patient rests on a divan in a dark room, and in front of him is a sort of magic lantern, from which are projected at frequent intervals various enjoyable pictures. In this way, it is claimed, the eyes of the sick person are delighted, while at the same time his ears are soothed by the vibrations of the phonograph.

As a result, weariness comes upon him and is soon followed by slumber, and it is while he is dozing in this manner that happy dreams are evoked, thanks to the phonograph and the stereopticon. After this light slumber comes a deep sleep, which, we are assured, is always most beneficial.

Several tests of this kind have been made with success, and it is said that not only are tired nerves refreshed by this method, but that the patient's body also rapidly increases in weight. That pleasant sounds and sights are soothing to the nerves we have all known for a long time, but that pleasant dreams have a tendency to make persons fat will certainly be news to the general public.

Great Age of Birds.
It is only possible at present to collect data from the duration of lives of birds in captivity; evidence otherwise must be very unreliable, and it is purely a matter of theory as to whether the natural possible life is greater than that under the unnatural condition of captivity. There are records of a nightingale having lived 25 years, a thrush 17, a blackbird that was still alive at 20½, a goldfinch 23, skylarks of 24 and 20. Ravens, owls and cockatoos are popularly supposed to live to very great age, and the following records appear to be authentic: Ravens, 50; gray parrot, 50 and 40; blue macaw, 64; eagle owls, 53, and one still alive at 68. Some aquatic birds appear to live to a ripe old age, for we hear of a heron of 60, goose 50, mute swan 70.

It is doubtful whether any of the foregoing ages are any true guide as to the longevity of the actual families the birds represent, or, indeed, whether the possible age of one family exceeds that of another, but the records are interesting, and form a step in the ladder of the investigation of this most difficult question. The coloring of a bird in perfect health and the texture of its feathers are exactly the same at 50 as at 5, and those signs that are popularly put down to age, such as bleached and faded plumage and misshapen claws or beaks, are attributable to unnatural conditions of some kind. The great life of some birds possess when deprived of food is marvelous, and the following instances are given: Golden eagle, 21 days; an elder duck, 28; an albatross, 35, and a penguin (Aptenodytes), it is stated, can live two months.

Sound English Sense in Egypt.
One principle deserves special notice. It is that of using English heads but Egyptian hands, says the Spectator. In practice this means the presence of never putting an Englishman into any post which could not be just as well filled by a native. In other words, the Englishman is only used in the administration where he is indispensable. Where he is not, the native, as is only just and right, is employed. The outcome of this is that Lord Cromer's work in Egypt has been carried out by a body of officials who certainly do not exceed one hundred in number, and might possibly, if the figures were rigorously examined, be somewhat lower.

Lord Cromer adds, however, that "these hundred have been selected with the greatest care." In fact, the principle has been—never employ an Englishman unless it is necessary in the interests of good government to do so, but then employ a first-class man.

The result is that the inspiring force in every department of the Egyptian State is a first-class English brain, and yet the natives are not depressed by being deprived of their share of the administration. The Egyptians, that is, do not feel the legitimate grievance that is felt by the Turkish subjects, who when they see even little posts of a couple of hundred a year filled by Frenchmen.

Malt and Mortar.

Our readers who have studied old accounts relating to masons' work are aware that there was a practice, which has only died out in recent times, of blending beer with the lime and sand used for mortar when the work was to be done was required to have special stability, as it was assumed that the beer rendered the mortar much stronger, says the Athenaeum. The people of Sheffield in 1616 acted on this opinion, for a bushel of malt was bought for "blending of his lime" when John Pittes repaired the Lady bridge. We presume that beer was made with it before the blending process took place; and there cannot be a doubt that John Pittes and his workmen tasted thereof, just to assure themselves that it was of the proper strength and quality.

"Now," said the border photographer, pulling his gun and leveling it across the camera at the man in the chair, "will you have the kindness to look pleasant?"

Such a demand by the cheek and the cool nerve of the request thus conveyed, the bold cowboy smiled broadly; and at that instant the border photographer pressed the button.

The Deacon—Brother, do you think we ought to accept that gift from Hephzibah, the distiller?
The Pastor—I think we might. We accepted one from a cornet manufacturer, you know.—Indianapolis Journal.

LEGEND OF BULL HILL

Maine Settlement Founded By Hussey and a Barrel of Bull Beef.

If the residents of Bull Hill, Me. settlement look east they see the broad surface of Great Pond. In the opposite direction their vision climbs the steep side of a mountain which hides its top among clouds in the daytime and talks with the stars at night. There are fourteenth houses, a general store, a hotel, a blacksmith shop and a diminutive schoolhouse in the village. Beyond these are trees and crags, tenanted by many wild animals and haunted by the ghosts of the men who perished years ago while trying to solve the mystery of a barrel of bull beef. The village of to-day has not changed in forty years, except that a schoolhouse has been put up on the spot where a groshop was burned by a mob in 1866. The schoolhouse is the smallest institution of learning in Maine. It is 12 feet wide and 18 feet long. Five pupils for every school day is the average attendance. When the boys start for school in the morning every one takes a dry stick of cordwood on his shoulder and saws it into stove lengths before beginning his lessons.

The name of the man who founded Bull Hill was Hussey. The act was wholly involuntary. In company with three other men he started from Amherst in the autumn of 1838 to take an oxload of supplies to a lumber camp in Greenfield plantation. As they mounted the shoulder of Bull Hill the men walked on ahead, leaving Hussey to wield the goad stick and guide the team. At the very top of the hill the rope leading the oxen and the barrel of salted bull beef rolled off to the ground, from which point gravitation took it over the brow of the hill and carried it out of sight.

"I'll get that barrel of beef," said Hussey with an oath, "or I'll never come back." He laughed at him, telling him they believed he was fond of bull beef because his teeth seemed to be made for the purpose of chewing tough food. As Hussey had large, teeth, which he never housed day or night, summer or winter, the taunt made him mad.

"If I find that barrel of beef," he continued, "I'll eat it all up or I'll starve to death trying." He took his axe, gun, ammunition and a few other useful articles from the oxcart and went off down the hill, while the men continued their journey to Greenfield camp. Hussey didn't show up at camp that winter, though the foreman needed him badly and he had been waiting for him. On their return to Amherst the men expected to find Hussey at home, but when they learned that he hadn't been seen since he went away the autumn before, his friends grew frightened and began to make up searching parties. After a time reports about a man lost in the woods reached Bangor and Old Town, and men who were out hunting for humanity's sake with a prospect of plenty of rum and molasses on the side made frequent journeys to Great Pond in quest of Hussey and his bull beef.

Many of these well-meaning searchers came to grief. A canoe containing three men and a boy was overturned in Great Pond on Dec. 12, 1839, and no body lived to reach the shore. The following month a party of four men took refuge under a fallen hemlock to avoid a sudden downpour, and every one was killed by a thunderbolt. Three months later a party of six was overtaken by a great forest fire, in which two lost their lives. One man was lost in the woods and his body was torn to pieces by wild animals. In spite of hardships and disasters the hunt for Hussey and his beef was kept up for ten years, and though evidence that he was still living was discovered at several times, he remained unknown to the world until 1852, when James Clinch and Arthur Pease, who had died into a cove on the side of Great Pond one afternoon and saw Hussey sitting at the mouth of a cave watching a handsome squaw at play with her three half-breed children.

"My wife, my babies," said Hussey, introducing his family. "Glad to see you, boys. Stop and have a snack." After supper the men questioned Hussey and asked him why he had never come out to the clearing in all the years that had gone.

"I've bin waitin' to many's the time," replied Hussey, "but I took my oath that I'd never come back till the bull beef was up." He paused here long enough to point out a barrel in one corner of the room, and added: "And it ain't all gone yet."

Current report has it that Hussey ate bull beef until the day of his death. After he was gone his children married and settled near their old home, so in a few years the side of Bull Hill held a small village, resting among the rocks and reaching up the road over which the founder chased a barrel of bull beef.

Getting Their Money's Worth.

A group of young men in evening clothes in no uncommon sight on East Side corners in New York Sunday afternoons. They are animated by a keen desire to get their money's worth. The garments are hired for a ball the evening before. The custom is to rent the suits at 6 p. m. and to keep them just twenty-four hours. The clothier's idea originally was, no doubt, to allow his customer to spend the day in sleep and to return his hired finery late in the afternoon. But the beaux of Orchard-st do not miss the opportunity of displaying their fashionable attire. Instead of sleeping late after a Saturday night ball they are up betimes, and in low waistcoat and swallowtail coat they grace the street corners in groups. The attention they attract and the satisfaction they feel repay them in large measure for the expense incurred. As 6 o'clock approaches they scurry away, as did Cinderella just before midnight, and a little later they may again be seen in the commonplace garb of their everyday life.

Sold Human Bones.

The keeper of the public cemetery of a small Bohemian town near Prague excavated the older parts of the graveyard, and sold all the old bones he could find for industrial purposes, as he found that certain manufacturers paid more for human bones than for those of animals.

He had been earning money in this way for several years before he was detected and suspended from his post.

THE PEACEMAKER

A Little Child's Pleading Prevents a Duel Between Friends.

Henry Wallis and I had had a very serious quarrel. He was my only neighbor, and he, my one friend, had accused me of being guilty of stealing his cattle. I naturally resented the accusation and words rose high, the result being that we arranged to fight a duel on the following morning at daybreak. I do not know exactly how it was, but I could not help feeling very lonely that evening. It was a cold and stormy night, and the wind moaned dismally in the trees. I thought the moor looked terribly dark and desolate, and I resolved to make myself as comfortable as possible indoors. I managed to make my wood fire burn brightly, and I tried to compose myself to read. I could not have been amusing myself in this way very long, however, before I fell asleep. I must have slept for at least three hours, when I was aroused by hearing a faint tapping at the door of my cabin.

I attributed the sounds to the wind, and tried to sleep again. But the knocking was repeated; there could be no doubt about it this time. There was some one at the door. I got up to see who it could possibly be, so late on that stormy night. When I was surprised to find a little girl—quite a child—standing there. I soon recognized her; she was Mary Wallis, my neighbor's little daughter.

It was raining very fast, and the poor child was shivering with the cold and wet.

I pulled the little one into the hut and placed her in a seat near the fire. I took off her shawl, which was dripping with rain.

"How on earth did you come here at this time of night?" I asked. The poor child burst into tears; she seemed very tired and ill.

"Are you going to fight father to-morrow morning?" she asked piteously. "Don't hurt him; please don't hurt father."

It was quite evident that she had heard of the duel that was to come off on the following day, and had walked all the way—some 10 or 11 miles—in the dark and wet, to beg me not to hurt her father.

"Mary," I said, "you are not old enough to understand; do not let me talk about your father. Let me make you some gruel and wrap this cloak around you."

But she was inconsolable, and she soon returned to the point. "Promise me you won't hurt father," she said.

Before very long there was another knock at my cabin door. It seemed that Henry Wallis had come to fetch his daughter, for whom he had been searching on the moor. He had been looking for her in all directions, and was delighted when he found her. But he would not speak to me, and without either of us uttering a single word he took her away.

At daybreak on the following morning I arose fresh and strong, quite prepared to keep my engagement with Henry Wallis. But the visit of his little daughter Mary on the previous night had not been by any means vain; I took the bullet out of my pistol. Wallis might shoot me if he had the will, but I made up my mind not to deprive Mary of her father.

I started for the place which Henry Wallis and I had agreed upon. I found his already there, waiting for me. "My child tells me that she asked you not to hurt me," he said, in a husky voice; "allow me to examine your pistol, so I may see if you have loaded it."

Taking the pistol quickly out of my hands, he at once perceived that there was no bullet in it.

"I cannot fight with an unarmed man," he said.

"Wallis," I exclaimed, "I took care my pistol should be unloaded because your little daughter Mary begged me not to hurt you; won't you shake hands with me for her sake?"

Poor little Mary Wallis never recovered from the cold which she caught when she called on me on that dark and stormy night. She has gone to be with a holier father.

The little peacemaker's work was done.

A Madstone That Stuck.

The sticking qualities of the madstone are illustrated in the family of a merchant near Hartford, Ky. Last summer Johnnie, a fourteen-year-old son of the merchant, was bitten by a mad dog. The wound was in the palm of the right hand, and when a small madstone about three inches square was placed it adhered readily; in fact, so much so that it could never be gotten loose, and is now thoroughly imbedded in Johnnie's hand. The boy has become accustomed to the situation, and, in fact, finds the stone quite a convenience in many instances. Besides wetting his razor and breaking up with it, the stone is a convenient weapon, with which Johnnie makes all the other boys in the neighborhood stand around.

Bus-Riding London.

Some notion of the bus-riding propensities of Londoners may be gathered from these figures just given out by the secretary of the General Omnibus company: Their 1,300 buses carry 190,000 passengers a year (at an average fare of 1½d.), and run 20,000,000 miles. The yearly receipts are 1,200,000 pounds. The 15,331 horses consume 250,000 quarters of provender every year at a cost of 328,000 pounds. The number of men operating this traffic is 5,000. The ticket system saves the company £200,000 a year. It may not be generally known that London owes the omnibus system to France. It was the company which introduced buses into London in 1855, and one of the original French directors is still on the board of the L. G. O. C.

Eggs and the Drama.

"After mature reflection," wrote the editor of the Locustville Star of the West and Voice of Truth, "we have decided not to publish any more notices of extraordinarily large eggs. We find that these notices tend to create the impression in the East that Locustville is not a 'good theane town.' Of course, it was likely to hurt his circulation, but art was art.—Detroit Journal.

REDUCED RATES ON STEAMER MYSTIC.

The new rates on the Portsmouth, Kittery and York steamer Mystic are a notable reduction over those which have been in force heretofore this season. Twenty-five cents will now carry you from Portsmouth to Gerrish island and return on any trip of the boat during week days. On Sundays the round-trip fare has been fixed at twenty cents. Furthermore, Portsmouth, Kittery and York car tickets will be accepted on any schedule trip of the Mystic, to be considered equivalent to five cents each. Special rates even more moderate than the above will be conceded to parties upon application at the Portsmouth, Kittery and York office.

Attention is called to the regular time table of the Mystic, in another column. The Portsmouth, Kittery and York management also announces that eleven car tickets will now be sold for fifty cents.

The Mystic affords an excellent chance for people to ride down to Newcastle, thence over to Kittery Point bridge on the steamer Butterfield, there connecting with the trolleys for York or Portsmouth. Or you can take the Mystic to Gerrish island and enjoy a delightful stroll over the picturesque road to the Gerrish island bridge, boarding the trolleys there for Portsmouth.

A number of combination boat and trolley trips are offered the excursionists by the frequent connections of the Mystic with the trolley road.

RAILROAD NOTES.

Since Aug. 1 the rule has been in effect that railroad yard men should receive double pay for overtime work.

Railroad excursions are more numerous than usual this summer.

Locomotives on trains passing through the city were covered with dirt today. The misty air wet them just enough to make the dust stick.

As the coal train from this city, due in Manchester at 10.30 in the morning, struck the switch at the gas house crossing there the other morning, the pony truck of the locomotive left the rails. After bumping along on the ties for six hundred feet, the wheels in some mysterious manner regained the rails and no damage was done except to the ties. A defective frog was the cause of the accident. Engineer J. F. Sheehan was in charge of the locomotive at the time.

AN INTELLIGENT HORSE.

Mr. John S. Young, the grocer at the corner of Deer and Vaughan streets, owns a horse that shows remarkable intelligence. The animal is used in his delivery wagon and between trips is kept standing in front of the store and generally is located across the tracks of the electric road, unhitched.

At the approach of the car, the horse will, without any prompting except the sounding of the gong by the motorman, back away from the track to the other side of the street, and when the car passes resumes his station in front of the store. The cleverness of the animal has attracted much attention and he has become the pet of the car hands and receives from them frequent tid-bits of sugar for his sagacity.

YOUNG STEWART FOUND.

Hayes Cotton Brings Him Back From Farmington.

Johnnie Stewart, the 13 year old boy who left his home at the Langdon house Monday morning, was located in Farmington Friday afternoon, and Hayes Cotton went there and brought him back to this city last evening.

Young Stewart wheeled to Farmington, saying to a friend that he did not dare to return home for fear his uncle would put him in the Industrial school. He was all night on the road from Dover to Farmington in a heavy rainstorm. Mrs. E. T. Cotton, the boy's aunt, is delighted to get him back, and will try to discourage any further escapades on his part.

When discovered in Farmington, Johnnie was rigged out in a typical tramp garb and was hardly recognizable. It was the suit he wore when he left his uncle's hotel. He had no money and had begged for food on the way.

Young Stewart left home apparently because he did not want to sweep down the hotel stairs, a request his aunt had made of him before breakfast. He promised, however, to do it after breakfast, but took flight as soon as he had eaten his meal. He is accustomed to a roving life and does not like the restraints of home. His mother is living in Duluth. In his wanderings this week he has been as far east as Portland.

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Two Young Men Arrested for Larceny.

Edward Rutledge and John Rogers, two young men about town, are held for trial at the police station on a serious charge.

When the North Atlantic squadron was in this harbor, Oscar R. Berry of Biddeford was among the large number of visitors that arrived in this city to see the ships. While here he was relieved of a watch and pair of eye glasses. He reported the matter to the police but they were unable to get any clue to the thieves.

Friday young Rutledge was arrested while trying to dispose of the two articles. He implicated Rogers in the matter and claimed that it was he who asked him to sell the watch.

POLICE COURT.

Quite a docket engaged the attention of Judge Emery this morning. There were four drunks, one for assault and two for breaking and entering and larceny.

The drunks were John Bishop, William Fanning, William Powell and Henry Eldredge. Bishop was fined ten dollars and costs of $6.90. Fanning, a Salem man, got 30 days at the county farm and costs, suspended on condition that he left town before 3 o'clock this afternoon. He made tracks.

Eldredge, an old rounder, pleaded not guilty, but Officer Shannon said he was monopolizing the whole width of the sidewalk in front of the banks on the square. Three dollars and costs of $3.90. Powell was put on probation not long ago. The judge gave him 30 days at Brentwood, too, and costs.

John Coakley was charged with knocking John Muchmore through a show case in a saloon last Saturday evening. He testified that he hit Muchmore in self defense. Muchmore showed a cut on his head which he said, required a number of stitches. The bartender told the court that he knew nothing of the scrap till he heard the glass break. The case was adjourned till 5 o'clock this afternoon so that Coakley might procure some witnesses whom he wanted.

Joseph and Charles Vigne completed the program. Their offense was breaking into the house of George E. Davis, Barbary lane, stealing several plugs of chewing tobacco and then climbing in to a bed and going to sleep, with their boots on. This all happened while Davis was away. He returned to find a window broken, and the two Vignes enjoying a beautiful snooze under his own coverlet. Beside the bed were two pint bottles a third full of whiskey.

It was too much for George and he summoned Officer Kelley, who took them to the police station. The tobacco was found upon them. Joseph Vigne testified for himself and brother. He said they were walking to Amesbury and met a fellow whom they gave a drink and who told them they could pass the night in the Barbary lane house because it was unoccupied. "We found the window open, climbed in, took a chew of tobacco and a drink, got into bed and went to sleep," said Joseph. "And that's all there is to it."

But there proved to be considerably more to it, for the judge held them for the next high court under bail of $100 each. They went to jail by the short cut.

The dates of the open air concerts for the rest of the season at Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, are August 17, 24 and 31.

Items of Interest In and Around The Station House.

The police officers were kept on the jump all Friday afternoon and made a number of important arrests. It was certainly, as one of the officers put it, a freak afternoon such as the police run against once in a while.

Officer Holbrook made the first capture. He brought in a drunk whom he found wandering around in a back yard on Islington street. The fellow gave the name of William Fanning.

The next was Edward Rutledge who was arrested by Officer Shannon on suspicion. His wrong doings are mentioned in another column.

Officer Shannon brought in a drunk well-known to the police here. He is skipper of a pleasure yacht but has been arrested for drunkenness a number of times.

It was Officer Holbrook's turn next and he picked up an Italian, Frank Tocio, drunk on Market street. Frank belongs to the Italian colony, employed on the electric road, and was just celebrating a day off.

Late in the afternoon word came to the station house that there was trouble at the Portsmouth, Kittery and York terry landing. Assistant Marshal West and Officer Shannon responded and found John Bishop, who works on the government fortifications at Gerrish island, in complete possession of the terry slip.

He had two large stones, one in each hand, and a crazy jag. The officers quickly overpowered the man and soon had him behind the bars.

John Roach, aged forty-three, an umbrella mender, was arrested on Congress street on suspicion. He had been trying to dispose of a diamond brooch at several local jewelry stores. It is of solid gold, star shape, with a pearl on the end of each point, and a diamond in the center. The man claims to have found the same at York Beach. The police put little credence in his story.

The next arrest was John Rogers who was brought in as being implicated in the crime with young Rutledge.

Assistant Marshal West and Officer Shannon also captured John Coakley, who has been wanted for nearly a week for an assault on John Muchmore. The assault took place last Saturday evening, when Coakley hit Muchmore over the head with a bottle. He has been in hiding over in Kittery ever since.

Early in the evening Officer Kelly placed under arrest Charles Libbey and another young man who refused to give his name, on the charge of breaking and entering. They forced an entrance into an unoccupied house on Barbary lane and were found inside by the officer.

William Powell, an old offender and well-known to the police, was brought in drunk about ten o'clock by Officers Hurley and Quinn and a little later Officer Quinn brought in another drunk, a sailor who gave his name as John Ross.
